The Battle of the Little Bighorn

The Battle of the Little Bighorn was fought on June 25, 1876, between the United States Army and the Lakota Sioux and Cheyenne tribes. The battle was a decisive victory for the Native Americans, and it marked the end of the Indian Wars.

The battle began when a group of Lakota Sioux and Cheyenne warriors attacked a group of United States Army soldiers who were escorting a wagon train. The soldiers were led by Lieutenant Colonel George Armstrong Custer. Custer's men were outnumbered by the Native Americans, and they were quickly overwhelmed.

Custer and his men fought bravely, but they were no match for the overwhelming force of the Native Americans. In less than an hour, all of Custer's men were killed. The Battle of the Little Bighorn was a major defeat for the United States Army, and it marked the end of the Indian Wars.
