In India, Vastu Shastra is a traditional system of architecture and design that has been practiced for centuries to create homes and buildings that are in harmony with the natural elements and bring about prosperity, well-being, and happiness for its occupants.

One of the most important aspects of Vastu Shastra is the orientation of the house. The direction in which the house faces has a significant impact on the flow of energy within the home, and can influence the health, prosperity, and overall well-being of its inhabitants.

North facing houses are considered to be very auspicious in Vastu Shastra. The north direction is associated with the planet Mercury, which is the planet of intellect, communication, and business. Houses that face north are said to be ideal for people who are in professions that require these qualities.

There are many benefits to building a north facing BHK house plan as per Vastu Shastra. Some of the most notable benefits include:

- Increased natural light and ventilation
- Improved energy flow
- Enhanced mental clarity and focus
- Improved communication and relationships
- Increased prosperity and success

If you are planning to build a north facing BHK house, it is important to consult with a qualified Vastu Shastra expert to ensure that your home is designed in accordance with the principles of this ancient science.

Our book, "North Facing BHK House Plans As Per Vastu Shastra", is a comprehensive guide to designing and building a north facing home that is in harmony with the natural elements and brings about prosperity, well-being, and happiness for its occupants.
