This groundbreaking book is the first to explore the rich and diverse world of urban Aboriginals who identify as leathersexuals. Leathersexuality is a sexual identity that is characterized by an attraction to the aesthetics and culture of leather, including leather clothing, gear, and fetish wear. For many urban Aboriginals, leathersexuality is a way of expressing their unique identity and culture, as well as a way of connecting with other like-minded individuals.

This book is a collection of personal stories, essays, and photographs that provide a first-hand look at the lives of urban Aboriginal leathersexuals. The contributors to this book come from a variety of backgrounds and experiences, and their stories offer a unique and diverse perspective on this emerging identity.

This book is an important contribution to the growing body of literature on sexuality and gender diversity. It is a must-read for anyone who is interested in learning more about the experiences of urban Aboriginal leathersexuals.

Chapter 1: The History of Urban Aboriginal Leathersexuality

The history of urban Aboriginal leathersexuality is a complex and multifaceted one. The roots of this identity can be traced back to the early days of European colonization, when Aboriginal people were forced to adopt the clothing and customs of the colonizers. For many Aboriginal people, leather became a symbol of resistance and pride. In the 1970s and 1980s, a new generation of urban Aboriginal leathersexuals emerged. These individuals were influenced by the gay and lesbian leather subculture, and they began to develop their own unique identity. Today, urban Aboriginal leathersexuality is a thriving and vibrant community.

Chapter 2: The Culture of Urban Aboriginal Leathersexuality

The culture of urban Aboriginal leathersexuality is a unique blend of Aboriginal and Western influences. Many urban Aboriginal leathersexuals incorporate traditional Aboriginal symbols and designs into their leather gear. They also participate in traditional Aboriginal ceremonies and rituals. However, urban Aboriginal leathersexuality is also a modern and cosmopolitan phenomenon. Many urban Aboriginal leathersexuals live in urban centers and are active in the gay and lesbian leather community. They participate in leather events and clubs, and they often wear leather clothing and gear in their everyday lives.

Chapter 3: The Personal Stories of Urban Aboriginal Leathersexuals

This chapter is a collection of personal stories from urban Aboriginal leathersexuals. These stories provide a first-hand look at the lives of these individuals. They discuss their experiences with coming out, their relationships with their families and friends, and their involvement in the leather community. These stories are both inspiring and heartbreaking, and they offer a unique perspective on the experiences of urban Aboriginal leathersexuals.
